Survival Skills and Ethics

I can't recommend this course enough! Survival Skills and Ethics (SLHS 649; 3 units; Wednesdays, 3:00-5:50 pm) is a course designed for graduate students and postdoctoral fellows in all disciplines. It covers topics such as effective speaking and writing, authorship, publication, peer review, grant writing, research compliance, teaching and mentoring, applying and interviewing for jobs, CV and resume building, and ethics. Also, upon completion of the course, you earn a Responsible Conduct in Research (RCR) certificate and fulfill partial requirements for the Certificate in College Teaching and Certificate in Science Communication. Contact Dr. Jenny Hoit with questions (hoit@email.arizona.edu).

Navy SBIR Innovation Summit in Tucson

Small technology businesses, faculty/researcher and entrepreneurs, are you seeking funding for your innovation? The Department of Defense has money budgeted to advance businesses and innovations like yours. The Arizona Center for Innovation has organized several great resource sessions. Attendees will learn the value and availability of Federal funding, learn best practices to secure these funds and meet one-on-one with Navy SBIR program manager. The informational sessions will take place over two days - December 12 and 13, 2017.

Congressional Hunger Center (CHC) Fellowships (Bill Emerson Fellowship)

CHC is invested in developing a movement of anti-hunger leaders who are creating the political will necessary to end hunger. CHC believes that the anti-hunger movement must have a community of leaders that fill a variety of leadership roles. CHC leaders—creative, flexible, inspiring and courageous—mobilize their values to foster the skills, knowledge, and experience necessary to create a just, food secure world. CHC leaders collaborate in the shared responsibility of creating a progressive anti-hunger movement, ensuring the right to nutritious, affordable and culturally appropriate food for all people. Learn more about our two leadership development programs: the Bill Emerson National Hunger Fellows Program, and the Mickey Leland International Hunger Fellows Program. If you plan to apply, we can help! Contact

Institute of Current World Affairs Fellowships

The Institute of Current World Affairs (ICWA) Fellowships nurture deep expertise in foreign cultures by supporting fellows engaged in self-designed independent study abroad for at least two years. A proposed fellowship must hold the promise of enriching public life in the US by enhancing understanding of foreign countries, cultures, and trends. ICWA provides “full financial support” for its fellows during the course of the fellowship experience. Eligible candidates must be under 36 years of age, have completed at least a bachelor’s degree, and possess the necessary language skills to carry out their projects overseas. Special consideration for fellows in Central and Eastern Europe and the Middle East and for fellows with graduate degrees in forestry or forest-related specialties.

Citizenship: unrestricted

Deadline: March 1, 2018 (for initial letter of interest)

Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (and Humanities) Pre/Post Doctoral Fellowships

The purpose of the program is to provide opportunities to young and excellent pre-/post-doctoral researchers from the US, Canada and Europe to conduct, under the guidance of their hosts, cooperative research with leading research groups in universities and other Japanese institutions. In so doing, the program is designed to help advance the research of the visiting fellows, while augmenting opportunities for young researchers to come to Japan from the US, Canada and Europe. Applications for this program are submitted by a host researcher in Japan who wishes to host a foreign postdoctoral fellow. All fields of the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences are included under this program. Doctoral students can apply under the short-term postdoctoral program.

Citizenship: US, Canada, the European Union Countries, Switzerland, Norway and Russia

Point Foundation Scholarships for LGBTQ Students

Point Foundation empowers promising LGBTQ students to achieve their full academic and leadership potential – despite the obstacles often put before them – to make a significant impact on society. By identifying and supporting these scholars, Point hopes to provide a greater level of acceptance and respect within future generations for all persons, regardless of sexual orientation, gender expression, or gender identity. Each person who applies for a Point Scholarship is evaluated on the totality of their situation. Academic achievement, personal merit, leadership, involvement in the LGBTQ community, professional experiences, financial need, marginalization, personal and future goals are all taken into consideration. Point Scholarships are awarded on a "last provider" basis. Point fills in the gaps and provides funds not provided by other scholarships, grants, loans, work/study programs, etc.

Funding Opportunities in Science and Engineering

American Fisheries Society - Steven Berkeley Marine Conservation Fellowship

This fellowship was created by AFS in 2007 to honor the memory of Steven Berkeley, a dedicated fisheries scientist with a passionate interest in integrating the fields of marine ecology, conservation biology, and fisheries science to improve fisheries management. Berkeley was a long-time member of AFS and a member of the first Board of Directors of the Fisheries Conservation Foundation. The fellowship comprises a competitively based $10,000 award to a graduate student actively engaged in thesis research relevant to marine conservation. Research topics may address any aspect of conservation; a focus on fisheries issues is not required.

Center for Disease Control Biochemical Markers Summer Fellowship

A summer fellowship opportunity is available in the Division of Laboratory Sciences (DLS) within the National Center for Environmental Health (NCEH) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) on the Chamblee Campus in Atlanta, Georgia. DLS provides laboratory support that improves the detection, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of environmental, tobacco-related, nutritional, newborn, selected chronic and selected infectious diseases. DLS also works to improve the rapid and accurate detection of chemical threat agents, radiologic threat agents, and selected toxins. Collaborating with a multidisciplinary team, the selected participant will use state-of-the-art laboratory equipment to address topics relevant to public health. This will allow the participant to gain hands-on experience in applied analytical chemistry and enhance their knowledge of its applications to public health

International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis Young Scientists Summer Program

The International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA) is an international scientific institute that conducts research into the critical issues of global environmental, economic, technological, and social change that we face in the twenty-first century. Since 1977, IIASA's annual 3-month Young Scientists Summer Program (YSSP) offers research opportunities to talented young researchers whose interests correspond with IIASA's ongoing research on issues of global environmental, economic and social change. From June through August accepted participants work within the Institute's research programs under the guidance of IIASA scientific staff. Funding is provided through IIASA's National Member Organizations.

- Program areas: Air Quality and Greenhouse Gases, Advanced Systems Analysis, Ecosystem Services and Management, Energy, Evolution and Ecology, Risk and Resilience, Transitions to New Technologies, Water, World Population.
- Flagship Projects: Arctic Futures Initiative, Tropical Futures Initiative, Water Futures and Solutions Initiative, Challenges and Opportunities of Economic Integration within European and Eurasian Space.

Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine Postdoctoral Fellowship in Genetic Epidemiology

The primary objective of this post-doctoral research training program is to produce cutting edge independent scientists and future research leaders in genetic epidemiology. The program is proposing to do this in a multidisciplinary setting and with emphasis on substantive applied orientation in cardiovascular disease (CVD) and CVD risk factors and other complex traits related to heart, lung, and blood disorders. The program team believes that the research environment at Washington University is outstanding for carrying out research in genetic epidemiology and cardiovascular genetic epidemiology. Background in one or more areas among biostatistics, statistical genetics, genetic epidemiology, and bioinformatics is highly desirable. Candidates with research interests in the development of novel analytic methods in genetic epidemiology are particularly encouraged to apply.

Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution (WHOI) Postdoctoral Program

Postdoctoral Scholar awards are offered annually to recipients of new or recent doctorates in the fields of chemistry, engineering, geology, geophysics, mathematics, meteorology, physics, and biology as well as oceanography. The competitive awards are designed to further the education and training of the applicant with primary emphasis placed on the individual's research promise. In order to be eligible for one of these awards, applicants must have received their doctoral degree within the past 2-3 years.
