Announcements

Fulbright Week 2016!
The Office of Global Initiatives, the UA Grad College, the UA Honors College and the Social and Behavioral Sciences Research Institute (SBSRI) have combined efforts to plan a week full of events acknowledging past Fulbright and Fulbright-Hays recipients; hosting workshops, information sessions and open houses; and informing faculty, undergraduate and graduate students about the opportunities available through the Fulbright and Fulbright-Hays programs. All faculty, staff and students are welcome to participate in any of the Fulbright Week sessions held during the week of March 21-25, 2016.

Lifestyle and Brain Health
A Graduate Center Lecture sponsored by Graduate Center, Office for Research & Discovery, and School of Mind, Brain and Behavior
We will trace how our lifestyle has changed over the past 10,000 years and its consequences for “health span” with particular focus on the brain and the non-communicative diseases that affect it, such as neurodegenerative disease. Aspects of lifestyle to be discussed will include stress, physical and cognitive exercise, and diet. This jargon-free lecture is open to the academic community and beyond, and no special knowledge will be required.
Speaker: Michael J. Zigmond, PhD: Professor of Neurology, Neurobiology, and Psychiatry at the University of Pittsburgh; Professor, Fudan University, Shanghai University
When: Tuesday, March 8, 2016 from 5:30-6:30 pm
Where: Thomas W. Keating Bioresearch Building, Room 103 (1657 E. Helen Street)

Moving through your career: From graduate school to postdoctoral training to employment
A Career and Professional Development Lecture sponsored by The Graduate Center, Office for Research & Discovery, and School of Mind, Brain and Behavior
This workshop will focus on such issues as selecting your advisor and your project, seeking the next position, preparing resumes and curriculum vitae, and negotiating. It will be geared toward graduate students and postdocs. Faculty advisors are also welcome to attend.
Speakers: Beth A. Fischer and Michael J. Zigmond
When: Tuesday, March 8, 2016 1:00-2:30 pm
Where: Thomas W. Keating Bioresearch Building, Room 103

Writing research papers: From idea to publication
A Career and Professional Development Lecture sponsored by The Graduate Center, Office for Research & Discovery, and School of Mind, Brain and Behavior
This workshop will cover the structure of peer-reviewed research papers and the process of preparing them. Included will be key areas of responsible conduct, including the selection of authors, conflict of interest, plagiarism, and sharing of materials. The workshop will be appropriate for graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, staff, and junior faculty members.
When: Wednesday, March 9, 2016 3:00-6:00 pm
Where: Student Union, Kiva Auditorium

General Funding Opportunities

Graduate/Undergraduate Team Industry Engagement Awards (UA)
These awards are available to match a new UA industry-sponsored agreement with support for graduate research. The industry partner will fund the first academic semester of the graduate assistantship and the Office for Research & Discovery will fund the second, as well as support the undergraduate assistants for the two-semester duration. The purpose of this assistantship is threefold: to catalyze new, funded research between University researchers and industry or to enhance competitiveness for University-industry efforts in the pursuit of external funding opportunities of mutual interest; to enhance the preparation of graduate and undergraduate students to work in an industry environment, as well as to gain experience supervising and mentoring an interdisciplinary team of undergraduates; and to provide undergraduates an intensive research experience in an interdisciplinary team environment oriented toward industry.
Citizenship: Unspecified
Deadline: April 18, 2016

Health Policy Research Scholarship
A new leadership development opportunity for full-time doctoral students from underrepresented populations or historically disadvantaged backgrounds training to be researchers and interested in health policy research. The goal of this program is to create a large cadre of diverse scholars whose research, connections, and leadership will inform and influence policy toward a Culture of Health. Health Policy Research Scholars is not intended for students pursuing a clinical doctorate without a research focus. Rather, the program is designed for doctoral students from a variety of social sciences (e.g., urban planning, health, economics, ethnography, education, social work). Each year the program will select up to 50 first- or second-year doctoral scholars pursuing research-focused degrees in an eligible discipline that can advance a Culture of Health. Participants receive an annual stipend up to $30,000 for up to four years and are eligible for a competitive dissertation grant of up to $10,000.

Citizenship: Unspecified
Deadline: April 19

Funding Opportunities in the Humanities/Arts/Social Sciences

Alliance for Historical Dialogue Fellowship Program
The Institute for the Study of Human Rights (ISHR) at Columbia University is now accepting applications to its residence Fellowship for Historical Dialogue and Accountability. Practitioners of historical dialogue and accountability from conflict, post-conflict and post-dictatorial societies will have the opportunity to engage in training, networking, project work, academic and applied study. The comprehensive program provides Fellows with the opportunity to hone practical skills in fundraising, advocacy and leadership, to develop a deeper understanding of dealing with the past, and to foster mutually beneficial relationships with their peers and with international and non-profit organizations in New York City and Washington, DC. The Program is designed for NGO practitioners, journalists, lawyers, teachers, social workers, community organizers, and others working on issues including (but not limited to) transitional justice, truth and reconciliation, historical conflict, indigenous and minority rights, social accountability, memory studies, oral history, sites of memory and related areas where historical dialogue is a central component. Preference will be given to those who can demonstrate an established work record of several years relating to historical dialogue and accountability.

American Indian Studies Dissertation Writing Fellowship Yale University
The Fellowship will support a graduate scholar in any doctoral field for the academic year, beginning August 1, 2014 and ending July 31, 2015. Graduate students working towards careers in higher education who have completed all doctoral requirements but the dissertation are invited to apply. The expectation is that the dissertation will be completed during the fellowship year. The criteria for selection will be based solely on an assessment of the quality of the candidate’s work and the project’s overall significance for the study of American Indian and Indigenous Studies. The Roe Cloud Fellowship will provide support comparable to that for Yale University graduate students, including an annual stipend, full access to Yale facilities and services, and health care coverage. The fellow will work in close affiliation with the Ethnicity, Race, and Migration Program and have access to Yale's exceptional research libraries.
Citizenship: Not specified

Department of Energy Office of Science Graduate Student Research (SCGSR) Program
The goal of the Office of Science Graduate Student Research (SCGSR) program is to prepare graduate students for science, technology, engineering, or mathematics (STEM) careers critically important to the DOE Office of Science mission, by providing graduate thesis research opportunities at DOE laboratories. The SCGSR program provides supplemental awards to outstanding U.S. graduate students to pursue part of their graduate thesis research at a DOE laboratory in areas that address scientific challenges central to the Office of Science mission. The research opportunity is expected to advance the graduate students’ overall doctoral thesis while providing access to the expertise, resources, and capabilities available at the DOE laboratories. The SCGSR program provides supplemental funds for graduate awardees to conduct part of their thesis research at a host DOE laboratory in collaboration with a DOE laboratory scientist within a defined award period. The award period for the proposed research project at DOE laboratories may range from 3 to 12 consecutive months.
Deadline: May 11, 2016

Singapore International Graduate Award
The Singapore International Graduate Award (SINGA) was first conceived to foster a vibrant and culturally diverse research community in Singapore. A joint collaboration between A*STAR, Nanyang Technological University (NTU), National University of Singapore (NUS) and Singapore University of Technology and Design (SUTD), the SINGA welcomes all international students to pursue a PhD education in Singapore. Under the SINGA, students will receive PhD training at their chosen lab at A*STAR Research Institutes or one of the three top universities in Asia - NUS, NTU or SUTD. Students will work in a multi-cultural environment, alongside distinguished and world-renowned researchers in state-of-the-art facilities. Singapore is the gateway to some of the fastest-growing economies in the Asia-Pacific region.
Citizenship: Unrestricted

Postdoctoral Opportunities

Agency for Science, Technology, and Research (Singapore) International Postdoctoral Fellowships
The A*STAR International Fellowship provides PhD graduates with two years of fully funded post-doctoral training at top overseas laboratories to expand their research experience and learn new skills to advance their scientific careers. This international exposure will enable PhD graduates to connect with the global research community and build international networks. Upon completion of the post-doctorate training, students can look forward to embarking on an exciting career at A*STAR's Research Institutes.

BIO5 Postdoctoral Research Associate (virology, molecular biology, cell signaling, and protein biochemistry)
The BIO5 Institute is seeking highly motivated candidates for the full-time position of Postdoctoral Research Associate I in the Laboratory of Dr. Felicia Goodrum studying complex virus-host interactions important to human cytomegalovirus persistence. BIO5 transcends traditional research models by promoting intensive interdisciplinary collaboration with individuals from many departments and colleges within the University of Arizona. The successful Postdoctoral candidate will work in a group led by the Principal Investigator, Dr. Felicia Goodrum, and interact closely with co-collaborators in a highly diversified interdisciplinary setting. The Goodrum Lab is seeking a skilled molecular biologist/biochemist/virologist with interests and experience in one or more of the fields of virology, molecular biology, cell signaling, and protein biochemistry. The successful applicant will join a motivated and high collaborative team working to understand viral and cellular mechanisms of persistence.

National Endowment for the Humanities Mellon Fellowships for Digital Publication

Through NEH-Mellon Fellowships for Digital Publication, the National Endowment for the Humanities and The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation jointly support individual scholars pursuing research projects that require digital expression and digital publication. To be eligible for this special opportunity, an applicant’s plans for digital publication must be essential to the project’s research goals. That is, the project must be conceived as digital because the nature of the research and the topics being addressed demand presentation beyond traditional print publication. Successful projects will likely incorporate visual, audio, and/or other multimedia materials or flexible reading pathways that could not be included in traditionally published books.
Deadline: April 28, 2016

National Endowment for the Humanities Postdoctoral Fellowships

The National Endowment for the Humanities, a federal agency in Washington, D.C., administers a fellowships program that provides financial support for individuals who wish to pursue scholarly research projects in the humanities. Projects should involve advanced research that is of value to scholars, general audiences, or both. Recipients usually produce articles, monographs, books, digital materials, archaeological site reports, translations, editions, or other scholarly resources in the humanities.
Deadline: April 28, 2016 (for projects beginning January 2017)

Obesity Society Early Career Research Grants

This program is offered by The Obesity Society (TOS), as a member service, to foster and stimulate new research ideas in any area of investigation related to obesity. The program targets junior-level investigators and post-doctoral trainees by funding proposals that demonstrate a high likelihood of resulting in new and innovative approaches in obesity research. Early-career investigators are defined as individuals who have received a PhD within the past five years or MD within the past eight years and who currently hold full-time, entry-level positions (e.g., post-doctoral fellow, instructor, assistant professor) at an established academic/research institution.
Applicants may request up to $25,000.
Citizenship: not specified
Deadline: March 30, 2016 (for letter of intent)
