National Science Foundation (NSF) Graduate Research Fellowship Program (GRFP)
The purpose of the NSF GRFP is to help ensure the vitality and diversity of the scientific and engineering workforce in the United States. The program is a wonderful source of funding for graduate students – providing awardees with $34,000 annually for three years, as well as additional benefits. NSF Fellows at the University of Arizona receive full tuition, mandatory fees, student health insurance for the Fellow, and a $500 travel grant during tenured years.

Students at the University of Arizona are eligible to receive application support for this fellowship. Registrants will receive: email updates with advice and links; access to examples of successful applications; feedback on application essays (provided the early internal deadline is met); invitations to information sessions on the fellowship and to workshops on the application process. To sign up for the program, please fill out this registration form.

Craft Research Fund Grants
The mission of the Craft Research Fund Graduate Research Grants is to encourage, expand, and support graduate research about craft in the United States.

- Project Grants: Grants up to $15,000 for research, writing, support documentation, images or rights to use images or text, as part of the research yet to be completed.
- Exhibition Research Grants: Grants up to $15,000 will be awarded to support exhibition research relating to the goals of the Craft Research Fund.
- Graduate Research Grants: Grants of up to $10,000 support research related to a Master's thesis or dissertation relating to U.S. studio craft by students enrolled in graduate programs in any accredited college or university.
- Travel Grants: $500 travel grants are awarded to individuals invited to read papers relating to U.S. studio craft at any scholarly conference.

The fund aims to: support innovative research on artistic and critical issues in craft theory and history; explore the inter-relationship among craft, art, design and contemporary culture; foster new cross-disciplinary approaches to scholarship in the craft field in the United States; and advance investigation of neglected questions in craft history and criticism in the United States.

National Science Foundation (NSF) Doctoral Dissertation Research Improvement Grants in Archaeology and Archaeometry
The Directorate for Social, Behavioral and Economic Sciences (SBE) Division of Behavioral and Cognitive Sciences (BCS) accepts proposals for Doctoral Dissertation Research Improvement Grants up to a maximum of $20,000 in direct costs (plus added indirect costs) to meet expenses associated with doctoral dissertation research. Items normally requested include per diem for time spent away from the home institution, travel funds, supplies and equipment, costs associated with field research and analysis fees. Salary for research at one's home institution is not permitted. Students doing international research having a formal affiliation with a foreign institution may be eligible for additional funding. The award amount is unspecified for the other proposal areas. For a detailed description of the Archaeology Program DDRI competition, see Solicitation NSF 14-566 which can be accessed via the Archaeology DDRI web site. The DDRI competition provides funds to permit graduate students enrolled in US universities to conduct dissertation research. The student need not be a US citizen or national. While the student writes the proposal and conducts/supervises the research, the dissertation advisor serves as the Principal Investigator and the student is listed as the co-PI. Both field and non-field projects are funded.

Richard III Foundation Scholarship for Medieval Studies
For over 10 years the Richard III Foundation Scholarship for Medieval Studies has offered an annual grant to graduate students who are in their doctoral years. Scholarship is awarded to a student registered for a higher degree whose work is based on the Yorkist period with their work relevant to the life and reign of King Richard III. (Students who are in receipt of awards from the AHRC and the Medieval Academy of America are not eligible.) The Scholarship is intended to help students meet the costs of research and/or living expenses. The successful applicant will be able to provide evidence of both academic excellence and financial need. Applications will be considered from previous recipients, although the Scholarship cannot be held for more than two years continuously.

Richard M. Hunt Fellowships for the Study of German History, Politics, Society, and Culture

The fellowship was launched in 2003 to enable promising American academics to probe issues of both historical and contemporary significance. Fellows are required to develop research itineraries in consultation with the American Council on Germany. The selection committee for the Dr. Richard M. Hunt Fellowship will evaluate applications based on the following criteria: the contribution the project will make to a better understanding of German history (and more specifically, the political, social, and cultural components); the feasibility of the proposed project; the training of the applicant; and the scholarly potential of the applicant. The fellowship award covers the costs of pre-approved international and domestic travel and a per diem of $200 for up to 28 days in Germany. Following the completion of the trip, fellows submit a report summarizing their findings.

The Strong – Fellowships for the Study of Play and Playthings

To encourage and support scholarship, The Strong® invites researchers to use its wealth of resources on the history of play and playthings. The Strong awards research fellowships three times each year. Eligible research projects must benefit from access to collections held by The Strong, including publications and other materials in the Brian Sutton-Smith Library and Archives of Play®; artifacts from the collections of the National Museum of Play; and artifacts and related resources from the collections of the International Center for the History of Electronic Games (ICHEG). Special consideration will be given to projects that offer fresh approaches for utilizing resources and that supplement, expand, or challenge prior play studies.

Ucross Foundation for Spring Artist Residencies

Founded in 1981, the Ucross Foundation provides uninterrupted time, work space, and living accommodations to competitively selected visual artists, writers, and composers. Nearly thirteen hundred individuals from every state in the U.S. as well as from Germany, France, Scotland, England, Poland, Egypt, the Netherlands, Canada, and Thailand, have spent time at Ucross since it first opened its doors in Sheridan, Wyoming. Currently, the foundation is accepting applications for its 2016 Spring Residency program, which runs from late-February to mid-June. Residencies vary from two to six weeks. At any one time, there are up to nine individuals in residence, representing a mix of visual artists, writers, and composers. In most cases, studios are separate from living quarters. Lunch and dinners are prepared Monday to Friday by a professional chef with ample provisions on hand for breakfasts and weekends. In addition, there is cell phone service on the property and several wireless Internet connection sites are available for the use of residents. Residents are responsible for providing their own working materials and for their travel to Wyoming. There is no charge for a residency. Artists, writers, and composers from around the United States and the world, in any stage of their professional career, are invited to apply to work on an individual or collaborative project.

American Society for Information Science and Technology (ASIS&T) Thomson Reuters Doctoral Dissertation Proposal Scholarship in Information Science

The scholarship shall consist of an award of $1,500 (donated by the Institute for Scientific Information). Additionally, Thomson Reuters shall contribute $500 towards travel or other expenses to the grant recipient, contingent upon the recipient's attending the ASIS&T annual meeting, and $250 to ASIS&T Headquarters towards administrative fees. The purpose of this scholarship is to foster research in information science by encouraging and assisting doctoral students in the field with their dissertation research. Because of the limits proposed by timing considerations, awards may be made for research underway, e.g., a student who begins research in the fall may apply for support for expenses incurred from the fall until the time the award is made.

Graduate Student Grants in Sustainable Agriculture

The Graduate Student Grants provide a maximum of $25,000 and may last for up to two years. These funds are eligible for masters or Ph.D. students enrolled full time (as determined by the institution’s requirements) at accredited colleges or universities in the Western region. The graduate student is eligible for only one grant during his or her graduate program. The PI for these grants is the Major Professor, not the graduate student; however the graduate student is welcome to be the one who applies on-line. The amount of targeted funds for these grants has doubled this year due to the rise in qualified proposals submitted over the years that Western SARE was not able to fund due to budget restraints.

Citizenship: Unspecified (but the Advisor is the PI, so international students are likely eligible)
Deadline: May 13, 2015

Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research Fellowship
The Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research (SCAR) is a body of the International Council for Science (ICSU) and is the leading independent organization for facilitating and coordinating Antarctic research, and for identifying issues emerging from greater scientific understanding of the region that should be brought to the attention of policy makers. Its major objective is to initiate, develop, and co-ordinate high quality international scientific research in the Antarctic and Southern Ocean region, and on the role of the Antarctic region in the Earth system. It works closely with other organizations with a polar interest. The SCAR Fellowship Programme is designed to encourage the active involvement of early career scientists and engineers in Antarctic scientific research, and to build new connections and further strengthen international capacity and cooperation in Antarctic research.
Citizenship: Multiple (see website)
