

Financial Support Options

Example from Graduate Interdisciplinary Program in Statistics

1. Eligibility

Many graduate students in the Program receive financial assistance in the form of Fellowships, Teaching Assistantships, and/or Research Assistantships. Students should recognize that financial support from the GDP is a privilege and is not guaranteed. In order to receive financial aid, the Statistics GDP requires that:

- each student must exhibit full-time graduate status at the level of at least 9 registered units each semester; and
- each student must maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or higher while enrolled in the Statistics graduate program

All MS and PhD students are encouraged to seek out funding from a variety of sources; the Graduate College has online resources which can facilitate this effort. Students are also strongly encouraged to apply for Research Assistantship support through faculty and fellowship awards from local and national agencies.

Note: Graduate Certificate students are not eligible for financial assistance, unless concurrently enrolled in a separate MS or PhD program at the University of Arizona.

2. Financial Support for International Applicants/International Students

Additional requirements for financial aid eligibility apply to international applicants. Please see the following page for more information:
