One hundred eighty graduate school-bound undergraduates from the UA and schools across the United States, Puerto Rico, Mexico, and Latin America will exhibit their summer research sponsored by the National Institutes of Health, National Science Foundation, U.S. Department of Education, and The University of Arizona.

These outstanding students have participated in a 10-week intensive summer research program under the supervision of UA faculty mentors conducting research in the sciences, social sciences, education, engineering, and humanities. This is an excellent opportunity to recruit top students for master’s and Ph.D. programs at UA.
